

Selectmen give Caira vote of confidence

by Arlene Surprenant
Wilmington selectmen gave a vote of confidence to Temporary Town Manager Michael Caira Monday when they notified him of their intent to appoint him permanent manager in July. Under the terms of his one-year contract, selectmen had to notify Caira of their intent to appoint him to a permanent three year term by April 1. The board will vote again in July to actually appoint Caira to the town's top position, barring any unforeseen circumstances.

The board voted four to one in favor of Caira as Wilmington's new town manager. Chester Bruce cast the only dissenting vote, saying it wasn't a vote against Caira personally but against the selection process. Bruce said he and others in town were in favor of a search for the best possible candidate. A majority of selectmen had decided against a nationwide search after learning that a majority of the board still favored Caira's candidacy.

During Monday's meeting, all five selectmen praised Caira for fulfilling his duties and doing a "good job" for the past nine months. Mark Haldane then made the motion expressing the board's intent to keep Caira on board.

"It's my belief the vote of the board hasn't changed," said Haldane as he asked fellow selectmen to make a commitment for Caira. When Bruce voted against the motion, Robert Cain said it would be best if the town manager had a good working relationship with everyone on the board. Bruce replied that his relationship with Caira was good and he was entitled to his opinion.

"I don't have anything personal about it," reiterated Bruce. Haldane noted his motion had nothing to do with the search process.

Caira thanked selectmen for their vote of confidence and reminded them his contract was drawn up at the board's request.

Annual town meeting warrant has 63 articles

Wilmington selectmen voted unanimously Monday to accept a 63-article warrant for the April 27 annual town meeting.

Three of the articles on the warrant deal with the appropriation of funds for capital expenditures. Article 6 asks voters to raise money to replace five police cruisers while article 7 seeks to raise funds for the installation of two chairlifts at the West Intermediate School. Article 19 could cause some controversy since it calls for overriding Proposition 21/2 to raise $185,000 for a new fire engine pump.

Article 10 calls for voters to approve a transfer of $98,000 left over from the high school boiler project to renovations to the Barrow's Auditorium. Approximately $300,000 is needed for the renovation work.

Article 21 seeks to delete a section of the current zoning bylaw to allow town-owned land to be declared surplus and sold in accordance with a new state law known as Chapter 30B. Article 23 asks voters to establish a stabilization fund which will be funded from monies from the sale of town land. Money in this fund would help pay for capital equipment in the future.

The Wilmington Water and Sewer Department is sponsoring several articles. Article 22 calls for the appropriation of funds to construct the Northeast Interceptor Sewer System. Articles 9 and 15 call for the purchase and transfer of certain parcels to the care of the water and sewer department.

Forty-two of the articles have been submitted for consideration by petitioners. Of those, eight deal with zoning changes, four focus on amendments to the zoning bylaws, three deal with the lifting of restrictions on private parcels, and twenty are requests to purchase town-owned land.

New law changes sale of town land

by Arlene Surprenant
Thanks to a new state law, Chapter 30B, the process of disposing of town-owned land has been altered "dramatically."

According to Planning Director Lynn Duncan, who also serves as co-chair or the Property Review Board with Building Inspector Jim Russo, town meeting voters can no longer vote to sell land to a petitioner. Under the new law, parcels must first be declared surplus then approved for sale at town meeting. After town meeting, any interested parties may then bid on the parcels, which will each have a fair market value attached to them.

The review board has yet to establish a timetable for the bid process. The whole purpose of the new procedure, said Russo, is to make the sale of town land "fair and equitable for everybody." He added the land should go for its highest and best use.

At a public hearing last Thursday, members of the review board received input on several parcels which could be declared surplus and approved for sale at the April town meeting. Petitioners who abut the non-buildable lots have asked for a chance to purchase the parcels. Board members explained the only way the lots would come up for sale is by petitioners requesting to buy them. Then the process begins to declare the land surplus and open up the bid process to any interested residents.

At the hearing, several homeowners explained why they wished to purchase certain lots. Most wanted to use the abutting land to enhance their own property or keep it open space and free of development. Two residents were interested in lots which are slated to be transferred to the water department. They were told to submit their written requests with 100 signatures to the town clerk in case a special town meeting is called within the annual town meeting in April.

In reply to one developer, Duncan explained if no bids meet the fair market value put on a piece of property, the board can either lower the value and readvertise the lot or wait until the real estate market is stronger before selling the parcel. At the present time, the only lots that can be offered for sale are small non-buildable lots because of the town's current moratorium on the sale of town land.

Principal Assessor Tony Krzeminski told the residents selling the land would benefit Wilmington, especially during the current fiscal crunch.

"We'd like to get this property on to the tax rolls. This would be another way of bringing revenue into the town. This (the land) is the most valuable asset that the town owns," he said.

School committee votes further staff cuts

by Arlene Surprenant
Further personnel cuts were made by the Wilmington School Committee Wednesday during a brief discussion of the budget. In addition, the committee opted to set aside $50,000 for use by the curriculum committee to purchase textbooks and other materials.

After one failed attempt, the committee cut one teacher each in performing and fine arts, reading, and physical education. Business Manager Peter DeRoeve said the cuts had to be made to validate the $12.6 million bottom line for the fiscal '92 budget. He reminded board members they never cut teachers to allow the directors who were already eliminated to move into the teaching positions. Phil

Fenton cast the dissenting vote saying he was opposed to laying off any reading teacher.

The board voted four-to-three to cut one guidance counselor despite a warning from the Special Education Director that any time you cut regular education support systems you pay an eventual cost where high risk students are concerned.

A move by Peggy Kane to cut two computer teachers in the middle school and give the money to the curriculum committee was withdrawn when Bob Surran suggested another option. He recommended taking the $27,000 salary from the guidance counselor that was just cut and $23,000 from the unemployment account and putting both amounts towards curriculum development.

A move to reinstate the physical education director failed by a four to three vote. After agreeing they needed supervisors to replace directors and department heads who had already been eliminated, the board directed Supt. William Fay to create job descriptions for the supervisory positions and bring them back to the committee. Later in the evening, committeemen also terminated a permanent substitute at the elementary level. They chose to transfer the remainder of her $16,000 salary and $8,200 in unemployment benefits to the unemployment account to bolster that fund.

Corey appeals two decisions

by Arlene Surprenant
Robert Corey is taking action against two decisions denying his proposal for a commercial subdivision in an old gravel pit off Ainsworth Road.

Corey filed a complaint against the five members of the Wilmington Planning Board for the board's disapproving his definitive plan. The complaint was filed in Middlesex Superior Court and received by the Town Clerk on March 12.

In his complaint, Corey said he is appealing the planning board's February 19 decision because the board "exceeded its authority" in disapproving his plan. He added that the reasons the board gave for turning down the project were "without merit," "impermissibly vague," and not in conformance with "reasonable rules and regulations of the planning board."

The board based its decision on a report by Planning Director Lynn Duncan, which outlined reasons why the subdivision should not be approved. Most of the reasons center on the fact that Ainsworth Road is partly in a residential zone and the town's bylaws restrict what can be developed on the site. In addition, case law prohibits the use of residentially zoned land for access to a less restrictive zone.

Corey is asking that the court rule that the planning board exceeded its authority. He also is seeking to annul the board's decision and have the court find in his favor.

In a related matter, Corey is appealing a denial issued by the state Department of Environmental Protection. The DEP recently denied a permit for the project, primarily because Corey's engi-

McCoy pulls out of selectmen's race

Former selectman Michael McCoy has dropped out of the race for a seat the Wilmington Board of Selectmen.

McCoy was one of five candidates for a single seat currently held by Bob Cain, who is seeking reelection. Others in the race are Tony Capuano, John Forrest and Margaret Imbimbo.

McCoy was indicted two weeks ago by a Middlesex County Grand Jury on a charge of assault and battery, stemming from an incident that occurred in the Wilmington Town Hall on the night of Nov. 13, 1989. McCoy and Cain were involved in a fight in the hallway after a selectmen's meeting. Cain was badly beaten in the fight and was found bleeding from the face immediately after McCoy left the Town Hall.

The next day, Cain and McCoy filed charges against each other in Woburn District Court.

A magistrate issued charges against McCoy in December, but disallowed the charges against Cain. McCoy was successful in having that ruling overturned, on the basis that the magistrate had not allowed him a stenographer at the hearing.

In October, the charges were refiled. Two weeks ago, at a probable cause hearing, the charges against Cain were dropped.

After losing a bid for re-election last year, McCoy complained that coverage in the Town Crier cost him the race. He made similar charges against the Town Crier as he withdrew his candidacy last week.

Plans underway for 'A Heroes' Welcome'

Wilmington servicemen and women who served in the Persian Gulf will receive a rousing welcome home, if plans under discussion at the Knights of Columbus Hall come to fruition.

Members of the K of C, along with members of the American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the Marine Corps League have formed under the name United for a Heroes' Welcome — Wilmington's Heroes. The committee is meeting on Monday nights at the K of C Hall on School Street.

The committee is hoping to stage a parade as well as a dance. The dance is set for April 27.

Persons interested in helping may contact George Hooper at 657-7697. Others on the committee are Jim Hanley, Joe Steen, and Barry Mulholland.

Students welcome two servicemen

Two servicemen who served in the Persian Gulf recently met with Wilmington school children to thank them for their Valentine's cards and letters of support during the crisis in the Middle East.

Navy Lieutenant James Ryan visited with first and fourth graders at the Wildwood School and presented them with a Certificate of Merit for their efforts in building troop morale. Ryan also showed students a picture of the ship he served on in the Gulf.

U.S. Air Force Major Ian MacInnis, a Wilmington native and graduate of Wilmington High, visited fifth graders at the Shawsheen School last week and thanked them for keeping in touch during the recent conflict. MacInnis also recounted stories of his combat missions and answered questions about his experience.

Officials seek soldiers' names

Local administrators are seeking the names and addresses of any Wilmington resident who has served in the Persian Gulf during the recent crisis. If you know of anyone serving in the armed forces, please submit the requested information to Wilmington Town Hall, Glen Road in care of Peggy Tarantino.

Health officials order tankers removed

by Arlene Surprenant

The Wilmington Board of Health took steps Monday to remove several tankers that have been parked in the vicinity of Ainsworth Road.

Health Director Greg Erickson told the board the fire department had asked that the trucks be removed as they pose a public health nuisance. The tankers are technically parked on property owned by Sunshine Investment Realty Trust. Robert Corey and Theresa Iminski are listed as two of the trustees of the company.

The board decided to send a letter to the trustees ordering that the trucks be removed within 48 hours of receipt of the letter. If the order is not complied with, members said, the town can impound the trucks and a court can order the truck drivers arrested. In addition, the board said they would issue a $20 per truck fine for each day the property owner failed to abate the nuisance.

Health officials also agreed to file a criminal complaint against Corey for failure to respond to a request to clean up trash and construction debris on his property. The complaint carries with it a $20 per day fine for each day Corey fails to comply with the order.

In a related matter, Erickson reported that the Department of Environmental Protection issued an Order of Responsibility to force the owner of C.P. McDonough Construction Company to clean up spilled oil on an adjacent site. McDonough will also have to go through a 21 E process, Erickson said.

While DEP representatives reportedly said they felt Mr. McDonough was making a "good faith effort" to clean his property of extensive debris, Erickson pointed out there was still a lot of asphalt and tree stumps left on site. McDonough will have to appear in Woburn District Court next Monday for a show-cause hearing on the clean-up issue.

Owner told to remove unsafe barn

by Arlene Surprenant

The owner of a barn that was deemed unsafe by the Wilmington Building Inspector has been ordered to file a plan to demolish the building within two weeks or have an engineer prove the structure is safe.

Board of health members told Joe Yentile their patience was wearing thin as they waited for him to act on their order to take down the barn. Chairman Jim Ficociello said the issue had been before the board since last fall. The structure, said members, has a roof in a state of collapse and the potential to fall down at any time.

Yentile said he didn't have the $20,000 needed to demolish the barn. He claimed the structure was "solid." A greenhouse is located on the third floor of the barn and hay equipment is kept in the cellar. Yentile explained he didn't have time to remove the machinery and the earliest he could do something about the building is July 1.

"You had the whole winter. We started on this in the fall," said Ficociello. Health officials told Yentile his only alternative to removing the building was to hire an engineer to prove the barn is safe. They offered the services of the town engineer to look at the structure.

Developer, board to meet

Representatives of Ohio Street Realty Trust will meet with the Wilmington Housing Partnership on April 11 at 7:30 p.m. to discuss an affordable housing proposal for a site on Silverhurst Avenue off Lake Street. The Commercial Bank and Trust Co. had foreclosed on the property and offered to work with the WHP to develop one or two affordable units on the site. Both sides said they would need a developer to help get the project off the ground.

Commission targets three violations

by Arlene Surprenant

Three violations, two involving illegal filling material and one involving the cutting of trees in the wetlands buffer zone and in a floodplain, were recently addressed by the Wilmington Conservation Commission.

The board ordered landowners Roger Groux and Richard G. Cole to pull back filling material from the commission's jurisdiction. Groux owns a parcel of land on Concord Street adjacent to the Riverpark 93 project and across from Fordham Road. The board ordered Groux to remove clay fill material which came from Deer Island. The fill was dumped in the 100 foot buffer zone and beyond said Conservation Administrator Eileen Chabot. Chabot also noted that the fill was in the Ipswich River Watershed which supplies water to over 20 area communities.

Cole owns a parcel of land on Marion Street which is slated for a residential subdivision and is reportedly close to the Chestnut Street wellfield. Fill material containing clay, bricks, demolition material, and grey sludge was found on several lots proposed for homes, according to Chabot. The administrator told this paper besides being "inappropriate," the fill found on both the Concord and Marion street sites could have an impact on public health. Clay is not considered good "leachable" material for septic systems, bricks can get in the groundwater, and the sludge on Marion Street smells of petroleum, Chabot said. She added Health Director Greg Erickson has been asked to look at both sites.

In a third case, commissioners learned that Richard Proctor and John Grano had been cutting trees down on their property at 16 Concord Street, without a permit, to make room for a single family dwelling. The trees are in the buffer zone and the floodplain. The violation was brought to the board's attention by commission, Chairman Dennis Poltrino, who told the men at the last board meeting the trees provide water retention and act like a wick to control flooding in the area. The owners said they weren't aware they were doing anything wrong. Proctor said as soon as they received a letter from Chabot, they stopped cutting the trees.

In related action at Monday's board of health meeting, officials told Cole and his wife Jean to remove all questionable fill containing concrete and masonry from Marion Street and take it out of town. Erickson warned that the owners are not to bring in anymore fill or cover up the fill that is already on site. Jean told this paper no fill had been brought to Marion Street since the end of February. The Coles and board members said, they would work cooperatively to clean up the site.

It's YOUR Money

by Joyce K. Brisbois
Certified Public Accountant
RETIREMENT OPTIONS

What happens to your pension fund when you retire? It's smart to consider all the options before you act with the help of an experienced financial advisor who knows taxes.

Should you take a lump-sum distribution or periodic payments? Take the lump sum, and you get the advantage of tax averaging. But if you take periodic payments, the money in the plan continues to earn tax deferred dollars. Another option is to take the lump sum, put the money into an IRA, and take your own "pension" from that. You lose the benefits of tax averaging, but you regain control over the money.

Should you put your lump sum distribution into your regular IRA? It's wiser to create a special IRA account for rollovers so that - in case you ever work for another company - you can roll the whole account into the new pension fund, if that's allowed. You can't do that if the original rollover had been mixed in with other IRA money. Important: don't miss the 60 day deadline to roll over pension funds.

Septic repair put on hold

by Arlene Surprenant

An order to repair a failed septic system was put on hold temporarily until after April's town meeting to see if Wilmington residents would approve an article appropriating funds to construct an addition to the town's sewer system.

The Wilmington Board of Health had issued a complaint against the owners of Stelios' Restaurant on Lowell Street to force them to repair or replace a septic system which has been overflowing on a consistent basis. The case is slated to come up in court next Monday.

Bob Katsikis, one of the restaurant owners, told board members Monday an engineer had been contacted and has come up with a plan for a new system using the old leech field. However, he said he preferred not to put money into a new system if he has a chance to hook into the new sewer line which will run past his restaurant. Katsikis said he would pump out the old system on a daily basis if the board would allow him to wait until after town meeting to move on any repair. He added, according to the water department, Stelios should be able to hook into the sewer line within a year if the article gets town meeting approval.

The board reluctantly agreed to the daily pumping. Chairman Jim Ficociello warned, however, if the article wasn't approved, the owners would have to break ground for the new system almost immediately. The case was continued to after town meeting.

John Forrest announces candidacy

My name is John Forrest and I am announcing my candidacy for the Board of Selectmen. I am a 35 year resident of Wilmington and have attended the public school system. I have also attended both the Texaco and Mobil financial business management schools. At the present time, I am the owner/operator of the Mobil Station on Route 129.

My wife Roberta (Carpenter), a fourth generation resident of Wilmington, and I share many of our concerns about the future of our town.

I am running as a businessman and as a resident who is disappointed in the direction that the town of Wilmington and the State of Massachusetts have been moving. It is my belief that all of us have to find the time to become more active and more informed if we are to address the future needs of Wilmington.

I think it is time that we have elected officials in the town of Wilmington who have the courage to speak their minds and the courage to vote the necessary budgetary cuts. We, the ordinary residents of Wilmington are being taxed from our homes and our town.

It takes guts to make cuts

Changes can be made when people care enough to work together and become personally involved for the good of the community. I am not a politician nor am I politically motivated or politically affiliated.

Joan Sadowski housing authority candidate

Joan M. Sadowski has announced her candidacy for reelection to the Wilmington Housing Authority. She and her husband, Paul, have lived in Wilmington for 20 years. Sadowski has worked toward the betterment of the community in many ways.

Thirteen years served on the Wilmington Conservation Commission.

Seven years as a member of the Wilmington League of Women Voters. During that time, she co-chaired the study on Wilmington water quality and supply, and was chairperson of the Committee on Legislation and the Committee on National Energy Policy.

Completed a two year fellowship awarded by Tufts University's Graduate Program in Urban Social and Environmental Policy.

Represented Wilmington for eight years as an executive board

John Forrest

We all have goals and like you, I have worked long and hard toward mine. If elected to the Board of Selectmen, I will apply the same level of energy to that position. People are tired of politics and its effects on whatever it touches.

I believe a candidate has an obligation to bring to "any" board the desire and commitment of working together for the best interests of the people and the town.

I hope to meet with as many residents as I can to discuss your concerns. With your help and support, I feel we can work together solving some of the problems that are now facing the town.

I would appreciate your considering me for your vote for the Board of Selectmen on April 20, 1991.

member of the Ipswich River Watershed Association.

Holds membership in the Middlesex Canal Association, Friends of the Harden Tavern and AARP.

In 1989 was a town appointed member of the Wilmington Housing Authority.

1990 she won election to the Wilmington Housing Authority.

Presently, Sadowski is vice chairperson and is seeking re-election to the Wilmington Housing Authority.

"In view of the proposed state budget cuts, this year will prove to be the most difficult and challenging one that the Housing Authority has ever experienced. I am ready to meet that challenge and help to bring affordable housing to Wilmington," said Sadowski.

Please vote Joan Sadowski on April 20 so that she may continue to serve you.

Capuano is candidate

Tony Capuano, a 19 year Wilmington resident and retired businessman, has announced his candidacy for a seat on the Wilmington Board of Selectmen. A long time neighborhood advocate, Mr. Capuano is best known for his successful action in the well publicized truck banning initiated on Glen Road, Middlesex Avenue, Ballardvale Street and Salem Street.

In 1989 Tony Capuano made local headlines after securing a rare audience with the governor regarding the truck banning issue. Joined by 40 Wilmington residents, Capuano met in Boston with the state's chief executive, after which the local truck banning took effect.

Identifying himself as the "neighbors candidate," Capuano said that, "It is time to send someone to the board of selectmen who does what he says..." Said Capuano. "You can rest assured that when taxpayers come before the board of selectmen they will have the undivided attention of Tony Capuano; I will act as a mediator between parties who can't seem to solve their problems, that in the past would normally take six months or more when in reality they could be resolved in maybe six days."

Capuano promised to reform the bureaucracy and cut the red tape in local government. "It's come to the point that you never leave Room Nine at town hall with your problems resolved," said Capuano.

Selectmen Candidate Capuano has proposed a detailed fiscal plan for next year to address the drastic reduction in state aid to Wilmington. Capuano's plan would, in part, require that town personnel with wages exceeding $50,000 take a temporary five percent reduction in pay. "There's nothing that says that town executives are immune from tough times," said Capuano. "They are valuable, good people, but the economy requires tough decisions like these for everybody," said the candidate for selectman.

Tony Capuano

Mr. Capuano is a member of the Wilmington Sons of Italy and has been appointed Sentinel. ## Paul on pols

Mr. Not So Smart has his rights

by Paul H. Sullivan

This week it was announced that Selectman Tom Camara plans to file a law suit against the Town of Tewksbury and five town officials for $5,275,000.

In his complaint Camara claims that he has suffered injury to his reputation, along with humiliation, ridicule and other indignities including mental and emotional distress as well as financial losses.

For the past week we have been treated to the Pamela Smart trial. Camara's lawsuit means that Tewksbury can be treated to its on version of justice.

Any similarities in this column to any real person is strictly coincidental. I have changed the names to protect the innocent.

"Here ye! here ye! Come and be heard. The case of Tom Not So Smart versus The Town of Mayberry. The Honorable Judge Oscar McDirt presiding," chants the bailiff

"I have read your complaint, call your first witness, Mr Not So Smart," said the judge.

"I call Mrs. Snodgrass," said Mr. Not So Smart

"Mrs. Snodgrass please tell the court how you know me"

"I was your first grade teacher" answered Mrs. Snodgrass

"Mrs. Snodgrass tell the court what type of student I was"

"You were just lovely, Tommy. You never ever gave me any trouble; you never said a word unless of course you were tattling on someone. But that was only when that little blonde girl used to egg you on. And now look at you, a lawyer. I'm so proud of you."

"Well I'm not a lawyer, I'm an out of work mechanic," said Mr. Not So Smart.

"Objection , Your Honor, Mr. Not So Smart is not supposed to take a trip down memory lane," Said Attorney Pukeroulas, the lawyer for the town.

"Sustained. Just ask questions, Mr. Not So Smart."

"Mrs Snodgrass while I was in the first grade did you ever see me throw anything in the school yard like hazardous waste or anything like that?"

" No, no, you were always picking thing up, like soda bottles. But now that you mention it, your desk was always messy."

"Yeah, but I always cleaned it up didn't I?" asked Mr. Not So Smart.

"Well, not right away, but after we brought the school board in you cooperated. Of course, they had a warrant".

"Judge are you going to let her say that stuff about me?"

"Just continue," said Judge McDirt.

"Mrs Snodgrass didn't I get along with others as a child?" asked Not So Smart.

"Well after you started hanging around the school newspaper people seemed to be friendly to you. And you got along with all your babysitters pretty well."

"Objection, Your Honor. We don't care about Mr. Not So Smarts behavior in the first grade,"said Pukeroulis

"Mr. Not So Smart you are supposed to be establishing the facts of your case, not reliving your childhood."

"Your Honor, I'm just trying to establish the type of person I am."

"We know who you are — you're Not So Smart," thundered Judge McDirt. "Now continue."

"I have no more questions for this witness."

"Any questions Mr. Puke," said the judge.

"That's Pukeroulis."

"Sorry about that. Any questions for Mrs. Snodgrass?"

"No, Your Honor"

"I rest my case," said Not So Smart.

"That's your case?" Asked the Judge.

"Yep, but I'm willing to settle if the town is."

"Mr, Puke, I mean Mr. Pukeroulis do you want to settle?"

"Not on your life. I get paid by the hour. I'm ready to proceed," said Pukeroulis.

"Proceed."

"I call Mr. Not So Smart to the stand."

" Mr. Not So Smart, you are suing the town for $5,725,000 — is that right?"

"Sure am," said Not So Smart.

"Where did you come up with that figure?"

"Well I have not been able to earn a living due to the adverse publicity."

"You mean people would not bring you their cars to be fixed?" asked Attorney Pukeroulis.

"Well, lately I've been in the soda bottle collection business," answered Not So Smart.

"You mean you collect soda bottles and beer bottles for their deposit?"

"Well, you make it sound so unglamorous, but yes that's what I do."

"How has the towns conduct prevented you from collecting these bottles?"

"Their are many people, who are reluctant to let me in their dumpster because of all these stories about the hazardous waste."

"So you want this court to believe that you would have made $5,725,000 collecting bottles in a year?" asked Pukeroulis.

"Of course not. It would have taken me at least the length of my term as a member of the Board of Selectman, which is three years."

"How much do you get per bottle?"

"A nickel"

"So you contend that you would have made over $5,000,000 collecting bottles at a nickel a bottle?"

"More or less. I was really going to hustle over the next couple of years."

Pukeroulis handed Mr. Not So Smart a calculator.

"Mr. Not So Smart could you please figure out how many cans and bottles you must collect to reach $5,725,000.00."

"How do you use this thing? I'm used to an abacus."

"In the interest of time, Your Honor I will figure it out," said Attorney Pukeroulis.

"Your Honor, I submit to you the figures. I would ask that you read them into the record," said Pukeroulis.

"The figures show that in a three-year period Mr. Not So Smart would have to collect 105,500,000 cans and bottles to make $5,750,000"

"Well that sound like a lot, Your Honor, but that's working every day, including Sundays," said Not So Smart.

"That means that you would have to collect 96,347 cans and bottles every day," said Judge McDirt.

"Well, I guess that is a little ambitious. I'll settle for $5,000,000 even — but not a penny less!" said Not So Smart.

"Will you agree to clean up your yard as part of the settlement?" asked the Judge.

"No way! I have my rights, you know," screamed Not So Smart.

A cloud lifts

by Larz F. Neilson

Last week, former Wilmington selectman Michael McCoy, recently indicted for assault and battery, dropped out of the race for selectman.

The news is not surprising. But the way he did it was disappointing.

While he certainly does have a right to run, for him to be involved in a political race while under indictment would place the voters in the role of a jury, without any rules of evidence.

In the selectmen's meeting of Nov. 27, 1989, when McCoy was asked to resign, he asserted that the proper place for the issue of the fight was in a court of law. He is right on that point.

What was disappointing was that he is still blaming others for his problems. As he withdrew, the focus of his candidacy was the fight. Michael seems to be trying to prove himself righteous in the fight as a ticket to return to the board. In a full page ad, and in an interview with the Lowell Sun, the subject at hand is the fight.

Is this all that his record as selectman has to offer? The fight?

Much of what has been said in the 16 months since the fight revolves around that topic. But the sad truth is that without the fight, McCoy has nothing on which he can stake a claim to fame.

McCoy served three years on the planning board and did nothing. His record as selectman is ditto, zero. The fact that the Town Crier seldom quoted him could be considered an act of kindness, lest people read his redundant, belligerent and unintelligent statements.

When he took positions, he would profess to be representing "the people." The question remains, "which people?"

Hopefully his withdrawal from candidacy will leave the playing field clean for the remaining candidates to venture forth and discuss the real issues, most of which will revolve around the town's dire fiscal straits. The campaign has the potential of airing some new ideas, and they would be most welcome.

frankly speaking

by Kevin John Sowyrda

Michael Caira's desk is a fair representation of this years municipal budget process. Speaking at the tenth hour of a typically long day, Caira fishes through the large pile at the right corner of the furniture. This is the information that's firm, that Wilmington has a budget shortfall of at least $550,150.

To the left is the pile of real problems.

These are the other cherry sheet programs that may or may not be funded. If they fall by the wayside the deficit figure above is hiked considerably, and in either event the town manager is on his way back to the drawing board.

The 1991 budget is two things; cruel certainties and what Caira calls "officially, uncomplete" figures, a batch of unknowns which seems to preoccupy Caira more than the known..

But as they say, it's what you don't know that can hurt you, and Wilmington's half million dollar cut in local aid could quickly become a devastating $800,000 slash.

That's because the state has assumed a level funding in "lottery aid" money to the town, an assumption Caira feels the state may have made too liberally, and still another that the so called "Highway Fund" will also be level funded.

An additional line item in our state aid package identified as "all other cherry sheet programs", which represents 7.5 percent of all state aid to the town, is assumed to be held harmless.

However, "It stands to reason that if all other line items are going down, why wouldn't that one", said Caira.

In a nut-shell, the town manager said that "People in Wilmington don't know what to prepare for", and that the final local aid cut figure still remains to be seen.

The state aid package is particularly harsh for cities and towns this year because while traditional aid figures are being substantially reduced, the Commonwealth is instituting new assessments. For the first time, local governments are required to contribute to the public school teachers retirement fund, which forces Wilmington to find another $117,158 in the Fiscal '92 budget.

Caira, like his colleagues in surrounding towns, is hoping to have better information by the annual town meeting on April 27. But in any event, deep cuts in services are on the way in addition to a budget already labeled as austere. The manager has previously planned for zero percent pay raises, a hiring freeze and layoffs through attrition. With an additional $500,000 plus cut in local aid, Caira said that there would be an "equitable distribution of reductions" translating into 30 or more municipal employee layoffs.

Amidst this budget terror, Caira and a growing number of state lawmakers have become advocates of a new government philosophy which would institute so called "local option taxes".

One proposal in particular, defeated just recently in the Legislature, would have allowed cities and towns the option to increase the excise tax on automobiles. Caira said he supports hiking just the "clunker" excise tax, meaning that vehicles now assessed the minimum excise of $5.00 annually would instead pay $50.00. This would produce a startling $500,000 - $600,000 tax increase. "This change alone would counter any cut in local aid", said Caira.

Has Caira, a prominent Republican who previously ran for state senate and managed the senatorial campaign of Joe Malone against Ted Kennedy, become a tax advocate?

Not at all, he says. Instead, Caira believes local leaders should "do more than cry about the cuts" and instead "become more solution orientated".

"I don't agree with Governor Weld shutting out local options. I agree there has to be radical changes in how state government conducts its business, and I think that means vesting more authority in local government," said Caira.

Besides a lack of money, Caira also faces a lack of information — exactly how much money the state will cut is unknown. And until that information is forthcoming, the only thing certain is that no matter how you slice it, things will be tough.

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

A cartoon in the last week's issue of the Town Crier gave the impression that Dr. Shirley Callan was personally responsible for the loss of jobs and positions in the Wilmington Public School System. Nothing could be further from the truth. The cuts and reorganization are due to the School Committee's attempts to support the town manager's proposed school budget.

Many communities across the country are coming up against similar problems and difficult decisions due to the suddenness and seriousness of the plunge in revenues following the rising expectations created by the unprecedented revenue growth of the 1980's. People seem to want budget problems solved, but do not want taxes raised and oppose many of the cuts necessary to make ends meet.

It appears that Dr. Callan is working to preserve what can be preserved in the direct service areas. This approach may not always be in the interest of individuals, but is in the interest of the system and the public it serves.

Mildred N. Wolff

Dear Larz:

After viewing the selectmen's meeting of March 11, I couldn't help but be outraged at Town Manager Cair's plan to raise the excise tax minimum to $50.00. I feel that this is totally unfair to people like myself, college students and other young people.

First of all Mr. Cair, have you checked tuition costs lately? The price of tuition is going up a lot more than most students care to know. Tuition isn't the only expense either. There's the cost of books, notebooks, fees on campus and several other costs.

Secondly, people like myself who drive older cars can not afford to drive a better one. Believe me, I would get rid of my car on the spot if I could drive a nicer one. But the fact is, I can't afford a more expensive car. This is especially true in these economic times. Also, young people get hit by higher auto insurance rates under the new safe driver plan because we haven't earned the highest safe driver credit yet.

During a time of economic problems, everyone has to make some sacrifices. I believe though, that $50.00 is extremely excessive. Students like myself can not afford the kind of increase you are talking about. While I respect your attempt to find a solution to our town's budget problem, putting an undo burden on those who can't afford the burden is not going to solve the problem. If anything, it will force people like myself off the road, decreasing your revenue intake.

Kevin Yetman

Dear Larz:

Recently, a great deal of attention was paid to a Tewksbury Wage Review Sub-Committee proposal. Specifically, the Tewksbury Personnel Board was vilified in a number of local editorials and news articles for purportedly freezing the salary of one town employee. The Tewksbury Personnel Board would now like to set the record straight and present the undisputed facts behind this case.

In November of 1990, a member of the Tewksbury Finance Committee, attending a Personnel Board meeting, requested the board's support and participation in a wage review sub-committee that the finance group was forming. The Personnel Board agreed to participate, provided all positions under the Personnel Board's jurisdiction were reviewed. With that agreement, the sub-committee was formed, chaired by the aforementioned Finance Committee member.

The sub-committee agreed to compare the salaries of Tewksbury's employees to equivalent positions in neighboring communities. Data was gathered from a number of sources, including a state wide Municipal Salary Survey, and a private salary review prepared by a local consulting firm.

A final report was drafted by the sub-committee in January. At that time, the members agreed that no announcement of any recommendations would be made until both the entire Finance and Personnel Boards could review and vote on the findings. Unfortunately, before the Personnel Board could convene to review the report, the Finance Committee representative granted an interview to a local reporter, and the recommendations were published in a local weekly paper the next day.

It is very unfortunate that this incident occurred, and the Personnel Board extends its apology to the town employee affected by the adverse publicity. However, the Board stands by its own actions, and takes pride in the fact that the members of the Personnel Board who participated in the sub-committee performed with professionalism and integrity at all times.

Sincerely,

Bill Blakeney, chairman, Dave Perry, Mike Skerry, Jack Day, the Tewksbury Personnel Board.

Investing in infrastructure

by George R. Allan

Given the current state of the economy, our deteriorating infrastructure is probably not at the top of most people's wish list. And yet our economy and infrastructure are closely linked.

President Bush understands the connection as evidenced by his singling out the need for a new transportation bill when he recently addressed Joint Session of Congress. Riding a wave of popularity over the victory in the Gulf, he hopes to pressure Congress into passing this major piece of his domestic agenda. The legislation would earmark 87 billion dollars for highways and 16 billion dollars for mass transit over the next five years.

The public expenditures on infrastructure such as roads, bridges, dams, water and sewer systems have decreased over the last 20 years. It represented 3.1 percent of our Gross National Product in 1968 but dropped to only 2.4 percent by the late 1980s. This decline in investment threatens economic growth. A well maintained infrastructure is essential to the production and distribution of goods and services on a local, national and international level.

Consider these statistics: Highway planners estimate that traffic congestion has increased by 15 percent in the last 10 years. Anyone who doubts that has never driven through Wilmington Center on a Saturday morning. Today the average commuter will spend six months of his life just waiting for red lights to change. Over two billion gallons of gasoline are wasted in traffic jams. (Maybe that's why there are so many gas stations on Main Street.)

One major public works project that is proceeding, not without controversy, is the multi-billion dollar Central Artery. One that isn't moving is the rebuilding of Wilmington Center and the bypass road. It has had more design schemes and alternatives than the Central Artery. Getting to Boston will be quicker in the future, if we can ever get to Route 93.

The Burlington Avenue bridge is a local example of our crumbling roadway system. The only paint ever applied to the bridge was a result of fender benders. The lack of maintenance over the years destroyed its structural integrity creating a safety hazard and forcing emergency repairs.

How dependent is our economy on our infrastructure? Recently, a federal judge issued a ban on new connections to the MWRA sewerage system until a landfill site is found for the Deer Island sludge. This plug in the pipeline has been met with protests from business leaders and builders because it stopped construction.

Financing of public works projects has always created heated discussion, even in the 1930s with the WPA projects. Today, people are looking for innovative ways to fund the large capital projects. Private investment, rather than public dollars, is popular in Europe. The Channel Tunnel between England and France is being built and financed by private developers who will be reimbursed from the toll revenue. On a local level, Wilmington has had six miles of its sewerage system paid for by businesses or developers.

In the future, users and beneficiaries of public works facilities will have to pay a greater share of the construction and maintenance costs. These fees may take the form of a highway toll or a connection charge to tie into a water or sewerage system.

Many economists believe that an increase in public works expenditures will prime the economic pump and speed up the recovery. It is estimated that for every dollar spent on these facilities, more than $2 are returned in goods and services.

Investigating in infrastructure will not solve all our economic problems. It will, however, help pave the road to recovery.

IRAs.

There was a time when you knew an IRA was a terrific way to save for your retirement. Not only were you saving for your future, but it was a great tax break as well.

Then the tax laws changed and maybe you changed the way you think about IRAs. What you might not know is that contributing to a Shawmut IRA today is still a great way to save for your future. Here's why:

Still A Tax Break. That's because with a Shawmut IRA you don't pay taxes on the interest you earn until the funds are withdrawn.

Still Deductible. And what many people don't realize is that your IRA contribution may still be deductible. Call us and we'll tell you if you qualify.

Still Number One. We're the number one bank in New England for IRAs. That means more people trust their retirement money with us than any other bank.

Still Secure. And while many non-bank IRAs are not insured, IRAs at Shawmut are insured up to $100,000 by the FDIC separately from your other deposit accounts.

Come talk to one of our IRA Specialists about the variety of investment opportunities we can offer you. Stop by your local Shawmut office or call 1-800-SHAWMUT. And find out why now is a good time to open or contribute to your Shawmut IRA.

To the People of Wilmington

On March 6, 1991, I appeared in Woburn District Court with my attorney, Daniel O'Connell III.

I had anticipated that my trial would go forward on this scheduled date, and that based on the evidence, I would be vindicated and this case would be behind me.

It was my intention that I would then continue my campaign for the Board of Selectmen, and I had hoped that all the encouragement and support that I had received when I announced my candidacy would result in a victory at the polls.

This was not to be.

After the District Attorney's office had been rebuffed by two separate judges on two separate court dates, he decided to make an end run and go to the Grand Jury prior to our third court appearance, which was scheduled in the Woburn Court on March 6.

I was never given an opportunity to go before the Grand Jury. This act now means that I must go through the legal process all over again.

Based on this latest action by the District Attorney's Office, it would be impossible to bring this legal proceeding to a conclusion before election date on April 20.

Rather than submit my supporters and my family to the resulting negative and disgusting lies that would appear on a weekly basis for the remaining weeks in this campaign, I have made a decision that is extremely painful for me, and have withdrawn from the election.

I enjoyed serving the People of Wilmington more than anything else I have ever done in my life. I have set forth some of the highlights of my legal fight to clear my name.

Keep in mind that Mr. Cain's lawyer approached my lawyer to settle the case for $10,000 in 1989. I refused to settle then, and I refused to settle now. It has cost me much more in legal expenses so that I can clear my name.

I now ask you to read some of the highlights during my legal ordeal so that you can get an honest picture of what has transpired.

My best friend, Bill Brouck, who worked very hard for me during my 1990 losing campaign, overheard Kevin Sowyrda tell someone in the crowd at the Town Hall on election night: "We beat Mike McCoy politically. Let's destroy his business so that he has to move out of Wilmington. Save Jim Miceli for me." "Impartial Kevin then ran against Jim Miceli in the fall of 1990.

"Impartial" Kevin, who is writing about this trial, then accepted a contribution from the Cains.

Chronological facts about the McCoy-Cain incident

*November 28, 1989: A complaint was issued against me by a clerk from Concord, sitting in the Woburn Court, for assault and battery after a hearing when my lawyer objected when the clerk refused to let us record the hearing.

*August 6, 1990: A Lowell District Court Judge dismissed the whole case because Mr. McCoy was not allowed to utilize a stenographer, which he had paid for, to transcribe the proceedings, nor did the clerk use any recording device whatsoever. The District Attorney's Office represented Bob Cain at that hearing. The DA agreed that I wasn't given a fair hearing, but pleaded with the judge not to dismiss the case, but it was dismissed.

*Mr. Cain then filed another complaint against me, and I filed one against him.

*September 28, 1990: At Woburn District Court, the case of Michael McCoy vs. Robert Cain was heard by Judge Leah Sprague. Here is a portion of the transcript of Cain's testimony (a stenographer was allowed at this hearing). Starting off, my attorney, Mr. Daniel O'Connell:

O'Connell: "Your Honor, I'm surprised that the government, the District Attorney's Office, is involved at this stage. I think it creates a conflict.

The Judge allowed the District Attorney to defend Bob Cain.

O'Connell: You pushed him (Mike McCoy) through the doors, did you not, after that?

Cain: I don't believe I was able to push Mr. McCoy through the doors. I pushed against him, but I don't believe that I...

O'Connell then showed a sworn deposition by Mr. Cain quoting Mr. Cain as having said he pushed Mr. McCoy through the doors.

District Attorney (Cain's Lawyer): Objection your honor. I have never seen this document. I don't know what it is, and I think this is way out of line.

O'Connell: No, it's not way out of line. It's a statement, an inconsistent statement made by the witness. (Bob Cain).

Judge Sprague: It's only being admitted for the limited purpose of impeaching this witness (Bob Cain) to credibility by a prior statement. Is that correct, Mr. O'Connell?

O'Connell: That's so. Did you say that Bob Cain?

Cain: Yes, Sir.

O'Connell: And you read this deposition, and signed it. Did you not?

Cain: Yes.

O'Connell: Were you interviewed by medical personnel prior to being treated?

Cain: Yes.

O'Connell: And did you say, "In a fight?"

Cain: No, I didn't.

O'Connell: Well, have you seen this document before?

Cain: Yes, sir.

O'Connell: This is your Lahey Clinic Medical Treatment record, is it not?

Cain: Yes, sir.

O'Connell: And under chief complaints, "laceration to head, in a fight?"

Cain: Yes sir.

*As you can clearly see, Bob Cain was caught lying in both instances when he said that he didn't push me, but made a statement in his civil case that he did. Also when he said that he was not in a fight, but according to the medical report, he said that he was.

In closing, the judge stated "I believe I've applied the standards properly, and I find that criminal process should issue in both of these cases, and the matter should be left for determination at trial.

*October 3, 1990: The front page of the Crier: "Complaints Issued Against Cain and McCoy." That was the only time that this newspaper reported that Cain was charged with assault and battery. This shows favoritism toward Cain. Given all the facts and testimony, the DA has dropped all charges against Cain, and has gone forward to a Grand Jury against me. (I remind you, the DA is representing Bob Cain) I was never given an opportunity to testify at my own hearing.

With the District Attorney's Office dropping charges against Bob Cain, I believe that this is a slap in the face to two District Court Judges. One judge ruled in my favor, while the other one found sufficient evidence to issue a complaint against Bob Cain for assault and battery.

I'm 32 years old, and I've lived in this community for all of those 32 years. I own a successful business in town, and I've served three years on the Planning Board before serving three years on the Wilmington Board of Selectmen. I resent very much that because of this newspaper you have never been given a fair picture of what has transpired since November of 1989. What you think, and how you feel is very important to me, and as I said earlier, I will continue to fight to clear my name.

Sincerely, Michael V. McCoy

Animals in the Wildwood

Youngsters at the Wildwood School in Wilmington were introduced to some unusual animals last week, ranging in size from an alpaca, above, to a caymen, a small reptile much like a crocodile. Larry Record of Southwick's Wild Animal Farm in Mendon told the students about the alpaca. The alpaca, which resembles a llama although smaller, is kept for its fur.

Therapist helps patients regain mobility

"I've had several operations since I injured my thumb," says Mary Strachan, a patient at the Regional Health Center in Wilmington. "And my surgeon says that without therapy, the surgery would have been useless."

The "therapy" Mary Strachan refers to is occupational therapy (OT), a healthcare field in which specially trained professionals help people overcome or adapt to injuries. Shari Rick, registered occupational therapist (OTR), specializes in hand OT at the Regional Health Center, a division of Winchester Hospital.

"If a person is injured, I will help them get back to their maximum capacity," explains Shari. "If that's not physically possible, I will teach them adaptive techniques so that they can regain as much function as possible."

Mary Strachan comments on her own progress, "I've had a terrific response. When I first started O.T., I couldn't flex my thumb and now it's to 50 degrees. And my strength has increased by almost 60 pounds. Shari really motivated me."

OT can involve exercise, heat treatment, at-home programs and the use of splints. "We use one kind of splint to immobilize an injured extremity and another, called a dynamic splint, to get a body part moving again," says Shari. "I work primarily with people with fractures, arthritis, soft tissue, post surgical and work-related injuries."

Shari notes that a big part of occupational therapy is education, since many injuries are preventable particularly those which are work related.

"There's a category of injuries known as cumulative trauma disorders that result from repetitive motions such as typing or working on an assembly line," she explains. In fact, a report issued last November by the Federal Bureau of Labor Statistics found that 52 percent of all work related injuries are now cumulative trauma disorders.

Carpal tunnel syndrome, the "disease of the 90's," is an example. It is a painful ailment caused by damage to the sensitive median nerve of the wrist, which controls sensation in the hand. Some people may eventually lose grip strength or feeling in their hands, making them unable to perform routine tasks, including their jobs.

"We see carpal tunnel syndrome a lot in people who work all day at computers," says Shari. "One of the simplest ways to prevent this type of injury is to take short breaks throughout the day for quick stretches. And keyboards should be placed at a height so that the users' arms, wrists and hands are parallel to the floors."

If you would like more information about occupational therapy contact the Regional Health Center in Wilmington at 508-657-3910.

Neighbor network seeks host parents

The Neighbor Network program is expanding! Since August of 1982, the Neighbor Network Emergency Shelter program has been serving youth ages 11 through 18 from the Mystic Valley area. With the increasing number of children and youth needing temporary shelter, Neighbor Network has increased our age range to include children and youth ages eight through 18. "With this new development, host parents are needed in Wilmington more than ever," said Karen Seif, youth services coordinator.

Community host parents provide temporary, short term shelter from one to 45 days for children and youth who are at risk of abuse or neglect, are runaways or need a respite from an acute family crisis.

"The importance of our program is to keep children and youth within their community so they can continue with school, jobs or after school activities, so not to totally disrupt their lives during a difficult time" said Neighbor Network's Homefinder, Melissa McGrail.

Host parents in the Neighborhood Network program are licensed by Neighbor Network staff. Host parents can be licensed for children ages eight to 12, youth ages 13 to 18 or for children and youth ages eight to 18. In addition, host parents receive monthly trainings related to children and youth issues; 24 hour staff support, a daily stipend and flexible scheduling. Clients are referred by the Department of Social Services, screened by Neighbor Network staff and carefully matched to appropriate families.

Being a host parent can fit almost anyone's schedule because Neighbor Network children and youth are required to be in school or an alternative day program. In addition, both transportation and after school program are provided.

"Successful host parents with our program come from diverse backgrounds and have been working couples, single parents, traditional families, singles and senior citizens. All you need is an extra bed, an open mind and heart," says McGrail.

Our future lies in the hands of our children and youth! If you would like to become a host parent, or would like some more information about the Neighbor Network program, please contact Melissa McGrail at 935-6495.

Brenton will work to find Shawsheen Tech funds

State Representative Marianne Brenton is her first official visit to Shawsheen Tech, called the Commonwealth to maintain its commitment "to responsibly fund regional vocational school districts like shawsheen, so that local assessments to municipalities do not increase dramatically."

Shawsheen which serves the towns of Burlington, Bedford, Billerica, Tewksbury and Wilmington depends on state aid for nearly 25 percent of its annual budget. The remaining 75 percent is funded by the district member towns who pay proportionally according to the number of students enrolled from that town.

"Bedford, Burlington and

Wilmington have 630 Shawsheen students who benefit from the excellent vocational technical programs at the school," said Brenton. "I want to work closely with Tech Superintendent Lyons to preserve the integrity of the school's state funding so that the high quality of education the school is known for can be maintained," she said.

CPR courses offered

Knowing cardiopulmonary resuscitation, or CPR, can mean the difference between life and death. Winchester Hospital's Education Department offers CPR classes to the community. These classes teach participants how to perform CPR and the Heimlich maneuver; a technique used to dislodge foreign material from the breathing passages.

Instructors demonstrate CPR through mannequin practice and a special film presentation. Participants who have successfully completed the course will receive a one-year certificate from the American Heart Association.

This CPR course will be offered in two part classes from 6 to 10 p.m. April 3 and April 10 at Winchester Hospital, and 6 to 10 p.m. on April 8 and 15 at the Woburn Walk-in Center.

Major Ian MacInnis, a Wilmington native, called on Thursday and asked if he could visit the grade five class that had been writing to him while her was serving in the Persian Gulf. We hastily assembled children on C-Level to give him a hero's welcome as he moved to Mrs. Maxey's classroom. Major MacInnis stayed for about 30 minutes answering questions from the fifth grade children assembled. He graciously returned the following day to meet with the children in grades K-One. We salute you, Major MacInnis!!

Lots of creative and academically challenging things are happening in the classrooms.
Mrs. Jones' kindergarten children are now television stars after their appearance on WCTV!
The children in Mrs. Rowe's second grade classroom are ready for a pizza party now that they have completed their "Book It" program.
The fourth graders in Mrs. Bakke's and Mrs. Latham's classes have accomplished an extraordinary feat!! They have learned the names of all the U.S. Presidents. How many can you name?
The first graders in Miss Sadowski's and Miss Cronin's rooms team every week to work on a three part activity session consisting of a whole language activity, computer lab, and art project.

Shop as often as you want and distribute as many certificates to family and friends as you like. The more participation, the closer the Fun Zone becomes a reality. Our last Star Share effort was a great success, thanks to all who took part.
Wildwood School
Plans are underway for the annual Science/Social Studies Fair. This fair will be held at the Wildwood School cafeteria April 11 and 12. Notices have already been sent home with full details about the children's project.
There was so much enthusiasm from the students and the community volunteers of the last two years of Children Learn After School (C.L.A.S.P.), that the Wildwood School is starting its third year of C.L.A.S.P.
From April 22 to May 17. Classes will run from 3 to 4 p.m. once a week for four consecutive weeks.
This afternoon program will require many volunteers. Men and women, to teach subjects of interest to children in grades K through five. Any skills which you may possess and could be offered to our children would be strongly considered. In effort to plan accordingly, we ask that anyone interested in becoming a volunteer for this program please leave your name and phone number with Ms. Kelley, coordinator of C.L.A.S.P. at 694-6010.

Agfa moving to Wilmington

Agfa Compugraphic, a division of Agfa Corporation has announced that it is moving its Haverhill manufacturing operation to its facility at 80 Industrial way in Wilmington. This action stems from the company's goal to increase its operating efficiency by consolidating its printed circuit board fabrication, assembly and test operations at one location.
"The consolidation of our manufacturing operation will make us more productive," said Richard Renwick, senior vice president, operations. "It will reduce our operating costs, improve our work flow and enhance communications within our entire manufacturing organization."
"Every effort will be made to minimize the impact on the work force at both the Haverhill and Wilmington plants," Renwick added. He said this included staggering the start times for the groups to accommodate longer travel times as well as to ease the flow of traffic.

Renwick noted that a number of Haverhill employees will be involved in planning and implementing the move, which is targeted for the April to June period. Plans for future use of the Haverhill facility have not yet been determined.

'People Helping People' Support Group

Cancer patients and their families cope with many concerns and stresses. "People Helping People" is a support group offered at Winchester Hospital which addresses their concerns. The group brings together parents and their families and friends with a health care professional who can give support and encouragement.

Jeanne Dube, social worker at Winchester Hospital, finds that patients who attend the meeting "want to hear and talk to other people who have been through the same experience. We try to help them deal with their emotions. The group is a combination of self-help, education and counseling."

People Helping People will meet on April 3 and 17 at 7 p.m. at Winchester Hospital, and continues to meet the first and third Wednesday of every month. For more information contact the Social Services Department at (617) 756-2634.

Wilmington senior topics

Income tax information

Seniors who need help filling their income tax would be wise to call the center for an appointment now. The AARP certified tax preparer will end his stay at our Senior Center next week. Joe has been doing a wonderful job for our seniors. While filling out many of the seniors' taxes, he has found they will be and should have been receiving refunds, not only this year but in years past. To correct this error he is filing additional forms to recover the money they are owed. He said this makes him feel good to find money for seniors that they did not expect. He loves working in this field for the seniors now on a volunteer basis. He has assured me he will try to help everyone who has an appointment even if he has to add a day or so next week. How can we go wrong with a offer like that and free?

Art instructor needed

We are still trying to find an artist who would volunteer to help us by teaching our art class. We are not looking for a professional teacher. We hope someone in Wilmington who enjoys painting and drawing as a hobby with a few courses in art would be willing to give their knowledge teaching the inspiring artist in our art class. It is only a couple of hours a week. Please, call if you or someone you know can help us. Our art students would be ever so grateful.

Bingo anyone?

We have many seniors who expressed a wish to play bingo. Realizing this wish could be granted as their only disability is the loss of hearing or failing sight. We asked the fair committee if they had enough money from the fair to buy a bingo board and large number cards for the bingo game. Checking their money and adding a few more raffles the money was collected. To the happiness of the players a board has been installed by senior volunteers Bill Belbin and Henry Latta and the large black lettered cards have been purchased. Now if you enjoy bingo, there is no reason you can not join all the seniors in the function room every Friday from 1 to 3 p.m. All obstacles have been removed. The room is handicapped all the way through. We serve all those in wheelchairs, those with arthritis in their hands, our cards need only a slight touch to move the cover over the number. Now the lighted board for those hard of hearing and the large black number cards that can be easier to read by those with poor eyesight. The game is free to all. All money realized through the sale of cards, is given back to the winners of the games. Bingo is another one of our programs that give mental and physical therapy to our seniors. If you feel lonely, join the players; you will meet some nice people and leave with a few dollars you did not have when you arrived.

Blue Cross/Blue Shield

Blue Cross and Blue Shield's open enrollment will be ending March 31. If you do not have a supplement insurance policy to cover the 20 percent of your medical bills that is left after Medicare pays 80 percent; it would be wise to get one, especially with the skyrocketing cost of all medical treatment, hospitalization, doctors and medications. There are several good policies offered by AARP and Prudential. What they have in common for your medical needs, you should check thoroughly. One thing they all have in common is that they all have only a month or so a year for an open enrollment. If you do not enroll when you reach the age of 65. Many seniors feel a supplement insurance policy is too expensive for them to carry and they cannot afford it. You should remember, Medicare does not cover the hospital deductible cost of your stay which in 1991 will be $628.00 and your doctor bill deductible that will be $100.00 in 1991.

Most supplement policies will pay for these two deductibles, a total of $728.00 that you would have to pay. And if you will need medication most policies will pay 80 percent of the bill after we pay the first $35 in every quarter. Think if over if you do not have a supplement insurance coverage. A policy could be a bargain when you figure it out. At any time we could be hit with a serious illness or accident, the cost of which could be astronomical. How do we pay the bill? Applications for Blue Cross and Blue Shield Medex policy; write Medex, P.O. Box 840, Blue Cross, Blue Shield of Mass., Boston, Mass. 02103. Applications must be returned no later than March 31.

Benefit hoop March 25

The benefit basketball game featuring the fabulous Magicians (led by Marques Haynes) and the Wilmington faculty All-Stars will take place Monday evening, March 25 at 7 p.m. in the High School gym.

Advance tickets for adults ($4.00) and students ($3.00) are on sale daily in all of the schools in town. This event is sponsored by the Wilmington High School Varsity Club. Tickets at the game will be $5.00 for adults and $4.00 for students.

When Marques Haynes and the Magicians basketball team walks on to the court to perform Monday, March 25 at 7 p.m. at the WHS gym, one of the finest rookies the Magicians have ever featured will be there in person - it will be Dwayne Ephram who hails from Greenville, Illinois.

At 6'6", Dwayne brings to the Magicians a lot of strength underneath the boards along with great rebounding help to go along with Paul Merrifield.

Dwayne admits that this year, his first with the Magicians, is going to be rewarding as he improves his game in the hope that he will eventually play in the NBA.

He says that his shooting ability is above average, especially from the three point range.

On the court with Dwayne, will be much more experienced players such as 6'8" Scott Stafford, captain Valentino Willis, dunk shot artist James Sterns, Paul Merrifield and the world's greatest dribbler, Marques Haynes.

Last season the Magicians had another undefeated year to add on to the 20-plus undefeated seasons.

After graduating from high school, Dwayne attended Wabash College for two years, then on to Cincinnati University, where he was a standout performer.

The Magicians' appearance is being sponsored by the WHS Varsity Club. Tickets are on sale and can be purchased in advance at all schools in Wilmington.

Another stab at final four

This week I'm going to take a stab at who I think will reach the Final Four in Indianapolis next weekend.

First in the East Region, I think that Temple has the inside-outside game to pull off a mild upset over Oklahoma State, while in the other matchup, you have North Carolina taking on this year's Cinderella story, Eastern Michigan.

Unfortunately for the Hurons, the Tar Heels have much too much depth for E. Michigan to have any realistic chance.

Next we have the Southeast Region in Charlotte, N.C. In the first game, it's Kansas vs Indiana. Now, I think Kansas has a strong mix with Randall and Jordan (Adonias that is), but Indiana has the firepower to go along with outstanding team defense.

Following that game is what I believe will be the best game of the Sweet Sixteen- Alabama vs Arkansas. Both teams can run, shoot, and play sound defense, not to mention both teams are on a roll.

If Bama can set the tempo by not trying to run on every possession, they could easily pull off an upset, but something tells me that won't happen.

In the Midwest Region, to be played in the Pontiac Silverdome, you have St. John's vs Ohio State and UConn vs Duke. This I feel is the easiest region to call.

Ohio State will meet Duke for a trip to the Final Four, with neither game being as close as the score might indicate.

Finally, you have the West Region in Seattle's Kingdome. If anyone takes Utah against UNLV, they should have their heads examined, for that game will be a laughter.

Meanwhile, Arizona vs. Seton Hall is a tougher call. Both have the inside people combining with superior backcourt personnel.

If Terry Dehere can shoot the lights out while softening the interior of the Wildcats, then the Pirates will win. Otherwise, pencil in Arizona.

After Thursday and Friday, the final eight will become the Final Four. From the East region, it will be North Carolina, since they just have too much depth for anyone.

In the Southeast, I have to say Arkansas, but who doesn't want to see Indiana come home.

In the Midwest, I like Duke to edge out Ohio State in a classic contest, while in the West, you guessed it, UNLV.

I'll let you know what the Final Four will bring next week.

Sullivan plays major role

Chris Sullivan of Overlook Drive, Tewksbury played a major role in leading the Wheaton College men's basketball team to a successful season.

The Lions recently finished their second year of varsity competition with a 10-16 overall record.

Chris, a graduate of St. John's Prep, led Wheaton in scoring with 20.7 points per game.

The sophomore guard is noted for his accurate outside shooting with a 44.2 percent field goal accuracy which includes a 41.1 percent rate from three point territory.

Chris brought that shooting touch with him to the free throw line where he converted 72.6 percent of his attempts.

In addition to his scoring abilities, Chris handed out 61 assists, blocked 10 shots and made 54 steals this season.

For his career, Chris has scored 940 points. If all goes well, he should become the first men's player in Wheaton history to score 1,000 career points early next year. Classmate Will Hawkins (Newark, N.J.) could also hit the 1,000 point plateau next season as his career total stands at 909 points.

A sophomore at Wheaton, Chris has not declared his academic major. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Sullivan of Tewksbury.

Wildcats prepare for super spring

here

It's that time of year, as with the first day of spring upon us, the baseball season has arrived. Wilmington High School coach Dick Scanlon is wasting little time in getting his Wildcats in shape for the season that will begin next month.

Robinson earns second letter

Northeastern University's women's ice hockey team finished second in the Eastern College Athletic Conference this year and Wilmington native Maureen Robinson earned her second varsity letter for her efforts on the ice.

The Huskies may have ended their season on a bad note by losing 6-1 to the University of N.H. in the ECAC tournament finals on March 3, but they still played great hockey.

Northeastern won its' eighth straight Women's Beanpot title by topping Harvard, 2-1 on February 12.

The Red and Black also brought home the Providence Invitational Tournament trophy in their 20-7 year.

Standing at 5'4", Robinson is one of the shortest Huskie pucksters, a distinction she shares with freshman goalie Michelle Distefano, but she is not short on skills. Last year as a freshman, she knocked in seven shots and assisted on five others.

This year Robinson wore number 16 and has played some sweet defense. She accounted for six Northeastern goals while assisting on seven others.

Head coach Don MacLeod hopes to see Robinson back in uniform next season, as her experience will pay off for both Robinson and the Huskies.

Northeastern, a young squad composed of 75 percent underclassmen, did MacLeod proud this season.

"They played a lot better than I expected them to this year," says MacLeod. "Winning the ECAC would have been nice, but I am very pleased with the girls this year."

The Huskies will lose only one player, goalie Sue Guay, to graduation next year. Robinson, who will be a junior, and the rest of the Huskies should enjoy an even better season next year.

A 1989 graduate of Wilmington High School, Robinson is scheduled to graduate from Northeastern in 1994.

Lombard completes fine season

Dartmouth junior Michael Lombard of Wilmington had a fine junior season as a starter for the Big Green basketball team.

The 6-8 center recorded solid all-around figures in his first season as a starter. Lombard led the team with 5.9 rebounds per game and 154 overall, and was tops on the club with 12 blocked shots.

Lombard's 47 steals placed him second and his 7.6 points per game placed him third for the Big Green.

For the 26-game season, Lombard shot .425 from the field and .739 from the line.

Lombard, who saw reserve action last season behind starting center Walter Palmer, who is now with the NBA's Utah Jazz, matched a career high in scoring with 19 points in the Big Green's 77-75 overtime loss to Columbia on Jan. 11. The following night he set a school record with eight steals vs Cornell.

Earlier in the season, Palmer had a career high five assists in a 59-47 win over cross state rival New Hampshire. He had 15 points and a career high 13 rebounds on December 20 in Dartmouth's 80-67 win over Barry University.

Lombard was named to the Ivy League Honor Roll twice this season, with a 17 point, eight rebound, three steal effort in a loss to Vermont and 36 point, 22 rebound performances vs Cornell and Columbia.

Under coach Paul Cormier, Dartmouth struggled to a 9-17 overall and 4-10 Ivy League record this season.

The Big Green defeated Wichita State, 74-63 early in the year and closed out the season with a 56-49 loss to nationally ranked Princeton.

At Wilmington High School, Lombard was a two year captain for Coach Dave Orndorff.

Lombard helped lead Wilmington to a 14-6 record and the Merrimack Valley Championship in 1986-87.

A government major, Lombard is the son of Michael and Harriet Lombard of Wilmington.

FIVE WAYS TO POISON PROOF YOUR HOME

At least six out of 10 poisonings occur in or around the home. Most are accidental and can be prevented. Although we can never be 100 percent confident that poisonings will not occur in our homes, we can reduce poisoning risks. Here are six ways:

1. Store medicines and household cleaners out of sight and reach of small children.
2. Do not damage caps on child resistant containers, especially if small children live in or visit your home.
3. Teach children about the danger of poisoning.
4. Keep poisonous materials in their original containers.
5. Safely dispose of outdated medicines and household cleaners.
6. Plants can have poisonous properties. Know their toxicities and hang them with care.

HAVING A HAND IN BEAUTY

The modern concept of manicuring can be traced back to the 1830s when French King Louis Philippe had a hangnail removed from a finger by his foot doctor, Monsieur Sitts. M. Sitts then went on to develop a hand care system which employed wood hand care tools, adapted from dental tools. Up until then, the fingernails and cuticles had been treated rather brutally with metal tools, acid, and scissors. M. Sitts' niece inherited his hand care practice in 1892 and became known as an "artiste of the hand." In America, the Sitts method was adopted with great enthusiasm, with many manicure establishments populating the New York City of the 1890's. It was not until the 1920s that manicurists lost their top billing to hairstyling, as more attention began to be paid to hair.

Beauty care is no longer considered a luxury in these modern times. We know if we look better we usually feel better, too. Make the call now to SHAWSHEEN HAIR SALON, 161 Shawsheen Ave., Rt. 129, Wilmington, for total beauty care. For an appointment, call (508) 658-9475. Hours: open six days and nights of the week, closed Sun. Let us introduce you to our line of Matrix hair care products. Our salon uses only environmentally safe products. M/C and Visa are welcome.

Manicures with Lisa $10.00

HINT: In Victorian America, a male manicurist was not allowed to hold the hand of a female client because it to be too intimate an association.

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

As long time residents of Tewksbury, our family is pleased to see such bright new faces on the political horizon. In particular, Ann Looney, who has ignited a fire in the people of Tewksbury, is running for one of two seats available in the upcoming selectperson election. Although Ann is new to the political scene, we have known her all her life. Her family's reputation as productive members of our town precedes her own unselfishness which she has demonstrated throughout her life, from her school days at Tewksbury Memorial High School through today, as a concerned citizen of this community.

As you know, if you have been keeping track of recent events, Ann has demonstrated a willingness to stand up to a status quo based on greed. Many people have taken their influence and power in our town and used it for their own selfish gains. It is about time that we elect someone who will be looking out for what is best for all of us. Ann possesses, in the eyes of all who know her, an unrelenting integrity. We are confident that she will do what is best for all members of our town.

The political horizon in Tewksbury offers us a change for the better, take a stand along with Ann Looney and, make your voice count.

The Vultaggio Family

Dear Larz:

The Wilmington Recycling Advisory Committee wishes to express its sincere thanks to Ackery Communications of Massachusetts, Inc. for their generous donation of space on their billboard, located in South Wilmington. Over the last three months of 1990 the Recycling Committee has worked very closely with Liz Palumbo from Ackery Communications. Her assistance has been vital in preparing the design of this sign. Based upon the cost of advertising space and the cost of placing the poster on the billboard the town has received a donation of $2,300. This generous donation demonstrates a high level of civic mindedness and dedication to preserving our environment. We commend Ackery Communications of Massachusetts, Inc.

I strongly encourage residents of Wilmington who have not yet used our drop-off center to do so. Containers are all well marked and volunteers are eager to answer any questions. For those of you who are using the drop-off center, thank you and keep up the good work. With the commitment of Ackery Communications, and residents, Wilmington recycles.

Wilmington Recycling Committee

Dear Larz,

We would like to request your cooperation in running this letter to the people of Wilmington. No doubt in the last six months or so they have become aware that a group of parents in the community is making plans for the construction of a playground in North Wilmington. We would like to answer some commonly asked questions about the playground.

What is the Fun Zone?

The Fun Zone is a community playground project, undertaken initially two years ago by the parents from the Woburn Street School area. During this period, parents have worked closely with safety experts, designers and representatives from the town and the school system to create a safe, adapted playground for use by the children in the community.

What is adapted?

Adapted simply means that this playground has been designed using a set of standards which will allow access to individuals using wheelchairs or crutches. In addition to adapting the equipment itself, special accessible surface materials will be used. This creates an environment that enables people with varying degrees of physical ability to experience interactive play.

Why should I support another playground?

The Fun Zone Playground committee believes that there are a number of reasons that the community will want to support this project. First, this playground will be one of the few adapted playgrounds in the state and, in fact, in the nation. Others will look to Wilmington as they have in the past, as a model for this kind of community project where able bodied and physically challenged children can play side by side. We believe that this playground will be a wonderful addition to the other play areas in town, Kidspace, Jason Stevens Playground at Rotary Park, and the playground equipment areas at our other schools and will, like these playgrounds, contribute to the quality of the community as a whole. In addition, the Woburn Street School is the only elementary school in the community with no playground equipment area. We believe that socialization through play is an essential part of the education of our children.

What can I do to help?

The Fun Zone Playground Committee welcomes your support. Here are some of the things you can do!

The Fun Zone is currently holding an ongoing deposit bottle and can drive. Bottles and cans may be delivered to the Woburn Street School lobby on weekdays during school hours. This Saturday, March 23, there will be a massive bottle and can drive at the Fourth of July Headquarters from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Raindate will be April 6.

Share the Fun stock certificates are available and may be purchased through the office at the Woburn Street School. Individuals contributing through this program will receive a stock certificate indicating the number of shares held and will, for a contribution of $20. or more, have their names engraved on a stockholder's plaque at the school. This is a terrific way to remember your participation in this project or a great gift for a person who has everything.

Another Star Market Share Day is fast approaching. Watch for the announcement on the week of April 2, 3 and 4 in the Town Crier. Do your shopping at the Star on those days and the Fun Zone will receive five percent of the sales generated through this program.

We are looking for volunteers for participation in the planning and implementation of a number of upcoming activities and events. Join us. We would love to have you. Your support, whether financial or through your participation as a volunteer is essential to the success of this project. For more information contact a representative of the Fun Zone through the office at the Woburn Street School, 694-6020. Thank you for your support!

By virtue and in execution of the Power of Sale contained in a certain mortgage given by John F. Sullivan, Jr., to Lawrence Savings Bank dated April 2, 1986 and recorded with the Middlesex County (Northern District) Registry of Deeds at Book 3415, Page 73, of which mortgage the undersigned is the present holder, for breach of the conditions of said Mortgage and for the purpose of foreclosing, the same will be sold at public auction commencing at 10:00 a.m. on the 2nd day of April, 1991 upon the mortgaged premises, being all and singular the premises described in said Mortgage, to wit:

A certain parcel of real property situated in Tewksbury, Massachusetts and being Condominium Unit #6 in building designated as (Phase 1) of Trackside Condominium a condominium located on Livingston Street, Tewksbury, (Massachusetts) as established pursuant to Massachusetts General Laws, Chapter 183-A by a Master Deed dated May 15, 1985 and recorded in the Middlesex County Registry of Deeds at Volume 3040, Page 149.

Said Unit is laid out as shown on the site plan and floor plans filed with Declaration of Condominium and Master Deed (as amended) and recorded in the aforesaid Registry of Deeds (in) Plan Book 148, Pages 43 and 44 and entitled (Trackside Condominium) and to which are attached the verified statements of a registered engineer as required by Section 9 of the said Chapter 183-A and to which reference may be had for a more particular description. Said Unit is hereby mortgaged together with the (percentage as shown in the Master Deed, as amended) undivided interest in the common elements and facilities and limited common areas and facilities described in the Master Deed attaching to the aforesaid Condominium Unit and subject to and together with the rights to use the same in common with others entitled thereto; and subject to and together with the rights in easements and encroachments and subject to such bylaws, rules and regulations, and said Chapter 183-A all as from time to time amended, and as set forth in the Unit Deed to the Mortgages from G.E.D.O. Realty Trust dated December 27, 1985 and recorded at said Registry of Deeds herewith, in Book 3301, Page 12 and all of which said interest and rights shall be considered as an integral part of the mortgaged premises.

The property address is 820 Livingston Street, Tewksbury, Massachusetts. The Mortgage may contain an erroneous reference to "830" Livingston Street, Tewksbury, Massachusetts. The Town of Tewksbury has, however, designated the property as "820" Livingston Street, Tewksbury, Massachusetts.

The premises are to be sold subject to and with the benefit of all easements, restrictions, buildings and zoning laws, unpaid taxes, tax titles, water bills, municipal liens and assessments, unpaid condominium fees and expenses, if any, having priority over the mortgage, rights of tenants and parties in possession, existing encumbrances, and all other claims in the nature of liens, now existing or hereafter arising, having priority over the mortgage, if any there be. The premises are also sold subject to the right of redemption of the United States of America, if any there be.

TERMS OF SALE: A deposit of FIVE THOUSAND DOLLARS ($5,000.00) shall be required to be made to the mortgagee in cash, by certified check or by bank cashier's check at the time and place of sale. The balance of the purchase price is to be paid to the mortgagee in cash, by certified check or by bank cashier's check in or within twenty (20) days from the date of the sale. The deed shall be delivered within ten (10) days after the date of the approval of the sale by the Land Court. In the event that approval of the deed is not obtained from the Land Court within ninety (90) days after the delivery of the balance of the purchase price to the Mortgagee (or such longer time as the parties may agree), the entire purchase price shall be returned to the purchaser without interest.

Other terms if any, to be announced at the sale.

Mannequins: DeStefanos of Woburn is world renowned

By DOUGLAS WOOD-BOYLE

Quietly, store mannequins stand ready to do the subliminal sales work of making you, the customer, want a piece of clothing because you think it will look as dashing when worn as it did in the store.

One of the top companies making these silent salespeople is Woburn's own DeStefano Studios, Inc. The company is in its second generation, having been started 55 years ago by two brothers, John and Pat DeStefano.

John's family, Richard, Irene and Paul are carrying on the tradition. In a recent interview, Pat noted that for many years the business was strictly a family thing especially during its early growth from 1966 to 1970.

"Hopefully it will continue to be a family thing," Paul said.

The company is much larger than just the family, however. John is retired now, but Pat is still holding down the fort.

He remembers the start as vase makers in Boston's North End and Paul told how the company has now grown from vases to mannequins and now can completely design and build a store from the foundation up.

The pair tell of the company's history from its second start in the basement of John's Melrose home after World War II to its present growth with offices in Woburn; warehouses in Lawrence, Chicago and Los Angeles; and, a permanent showroom in New York.

Pat is proud of the company's minority hiring practices and the length of time the employees have been with them.

Paul said that he started with the company when he was eight years old, and he has done many jobs from being a model for the mannequins to running the business.

Paul remembered the time when people from Plimoth Plantation were looking for a model of a butter churner. He said that his father asked them how old it had to be and they said about eight-years-old. John told the clients he had just the model. Paul turned out to be that model and his likeness now stands in the Plantation.

In the same manner, Pat's hands were chosen to be the model for the signing of the Mayflower Compact.

According to Pat's history, he and John grew up in the North End. "It was a section of the city where we could have gone the other way (towards a life of crime).

He said that the road toward their success started when John attended the North End Industrial School at the age of 19.

"(President Herbert) Hoover was on his way out and (President Franklin D.) Roosevelt was on his way in," Pat said. "There was a general air of euphoria throughout the country because of the New Deal."

An instructor had John do a plaster of Paris bust of Roosevelt which turned out so well that it was bronzed. The Democratic leadership in Boston, including Mayor James Michael Curley, the Fitzgerald family and others sponsored John's trip to Washington D.C. where the bas relief was personally presented to Roosevelt.

Pat said that it was not known what happened to it after that. Until one night he was watching a news-cast of a press conference with President Ronald Reagan. During the clip, he caught a glimpse of the bas relief on the wall behind the President.

However, the depression came along and the two brothers had to peddle fruit from a cart in the North End to earn their livings.

According to Pat, John then started teaching and after a stint with the Work Progress Administration, he started the Cooperative Arts and Crafts Studio in Boston's West End.

Pat became John's apprentice, and during the venture, they started to make vases that were sold to stores for display pieces.

Pat said that the demand for the vases grew and the art studio was closed. "We moved to 95 Portland Street when the studio was disbanded."

After the move, Pat recalled that some of their stores inquired if the brothers could repair the mannequins. Because the vases were made of the same papier mache and plaster of Paris material used in the mannequins, the brothers took on the repair work. Just as their business was building up, World War II broke out and all the assets were sold when the brothers enlisted.

John enlisted in the U.S. Navy Sea Bees and was sent to the Pacific Theater. Pat went into the Army Airways Communications and was sent to the Mid-East, arriving just after Germany's Field Marshall George Rommel had been defeated.

According to Pat, John put his artistic bent to use during the war by designing and making Christmas cards that he sold to the troops.

When the war was over, John wanted to start the business up again. However, this time he did not have much capital. As a result, DeStefano Studios was started in the cellar of John's house.

Pat remembers one funny incident caused by the location and the

Mannequins to S-4

PAUL DESTEFANO (I) CONTINUES the family tradition of supplying lifelike store mannequins to entice customers into buying the right piece of clothing. The business evolved over the past 65-years after his father, John, created a bas relief plaque of President Franklin D. Roosevelt. John and his brother Pat soon became known throughout the country for their mannequins.

If you can't come to the "Y," let the "Y" come to you! This is the working hypothesis for the North Suburban YMCA's very successful Backyard Pool Program.

In this innovative program a professional swim instructor from the North Suburban YMCA travels around to neighborhood pools in surrounding towns to teach your children and your neighbor's children.

Lessons are given four days a week, Monday through Thursday, for two weeks. Friday is reserved for a rainy day make-up. All the regular classes are taught in the Back Yard Pool Program. However, it is recommended that babies under 24 months come to TEWKSBURY - From the people who brought you Patriot and from Canteen, a joint plan and multi-step program to reduce the use of styrofoam, plastic and paper products in the Raytheon cafeterias and ultimately, shrink the stress on overburdened landfills: additional, reusable cups, trays, plates, and utensils - plus incentives to dispose of disposables.

Plastic trays will replace foam trays and will need to be returned to the cafeteria on the user's next trip there, no extra travel required. "If it becomes impossible for you to return the tray for whatever reason, foam trays will be available, by request only, behind the serving line."

Last year, Raytheon Missile Systems Labs cafeterias alone used 1,976,000 styrofoam coffee cups.

This month and none too soon, for $1, employees may purchase a 14-ounce, insulated environmental mug from the cafeteria, entitling them from then on, to five cents off a 55-cent soda, 10 cents off a 70-cent milk, and 15 cents off a 60-cent 14-ounce coffee.

We'll drink to that.

All-State Jazz Choir/Combo Festival

For the second consecutive year the Choral Music Department of Woburn Senior High School will host the All-State Jazz Choir/Instrumental Combo Festival, sponsored by the Mass. division of the International Association of Jazz Educators (I.A.J.E.). The festival will be held on Wednesday afternoon and evening, March 27th beginning at 3 p.m. and concluding at approximately 9 p.m.

According to Robert J. Hodgson, Choral Director at Woburn Senior High School and Host/Coordinator of the Festival, this will be one of the largest events of its kind, with 16 high schools from across the state participating. Last year, three jazz choirs and seven instrumental combos competed for Gold, Silver and Bronze ratings. This year's event has attracted eight jazz choirs and eight combos, featuring many talented musicians from public and private high schools from all areas of Massachusetts.

The festival will be broken up into two equal "halves," the first four jazz choirs performing in the Upper School Cafeteria beginning at 3 p.m., and the first four combos commencing at 3:15 p.m. in the high school's James O'Donnell Auditorium. There will be a dinner break from 5:15 to 6 p.m. which will be followed by the last four choirs and combos competing in their respective locations from 6 to 8 p.m. All participating schools will meet in the O'Donnell Auditorium at 8:15 p.m. for the Awards Ceremonies. Jazz combos and Class A and Class B choirs will be vying for Gold, Silver and Bronze ratings.

Presiding over the ceremonies will be Dr. Donald Bastarache from Westfield State College, Vice-President of the Mass. Division of I.A.J.E. and Head Judge and Raymond J. Novack, President of the Mass. I.A.J.E. Executive Board. Masters of Ceremonies will be Woburn H.S. senior Michael Kerrigan (Jazz Combos) and Mr. Richard Tellier, I.A.J.E. Executive Board Publicity Chairman (Jazz Choirs). Students from the Woburn High School Music Department and parents will comprise the festival staff coordinated by Mr. Hodgson.

The following high schools will have Jazz Choirs competing in the Festival: Scituate H.S., Algonquin Regional H.S., Lexington, Stoughton, Springfield Central H.S., Waltham, Westfield and Foxboro High School. Jazz Combos will be representing the following High Schools: Belmont, Andover, Randolph, Lexington, Milton Academy, Foxboro H.S., Oliver Ames H.S. (Easton) and Marshfield High School.

The entire festival, including the Awards Ceremonies, is open to the public and one admission ($2.50) will provide attendance to any portion or all of the festival - jazz choirs and combos. For jazz-lovers, this festival is a must. There is sure to be an array of highly-talented musicians to please even the discerning "jazz buff." Tickets will be sold throughout the festival on March 27 in the lobby of the O'Donnell Auditorium or may be purchased in advance at Woburn High School's Music Department. Telephone (617) 933-8050, Ext. 35; ask for Mr. Hodgson.

Mannequins

modesty of the times.

As he tells the story, in those days because the mannequins were so lifelike, they were always covered by a blanket when being transported in a car.

John had parked the car, with two mannequins in the back seat, while he ran into his house. A lady riding by the car saw what she thought were two bodies covered up by a blanket and notified the police who came to investigate.

Once again the business started to grow and the brothers were designing and repairing mannequins for stores such as Filene's and Jordan Marsh.

They were eventually forced out of the residential neighborhood and back into Boston, where they opened shop on Hanover Street, from there the business moved to Dorchester, and in 1974 John discovered the property for sale on Woburn's Commerce Way.

Pat said that by the time the company moved to Dorchester, they had to modernize and start dealing with the new fiberglass mannequins that were in demand.

According to Pat before the brothers started making their own mannequins they would drive to New York and buy them for resale. He said that in those days, the mannequins sold for about $85 each.

Now the cost without wigs can run over $1,000. He noted that the average price is in the range of $850. Because the wigs are a big part of the cost, many stores are going with generic mannequins or an avant garde type that do not require hair.

As part of the companies growth, John was one of the first people to come up with a successful design and color combination for an Afro-American mannequin.

When the company started to make their own mannequins, the growth really started.

This required shops for making the molds and painting them. It also required wood-working and injection molding shops.

However, a setback occurred just after the move to Woburn. At that time the gas crisis had set in and stores were forced to darken their windows. Thus, not as many mannequins were needed.

However, true to form, John found another way to increase business. As the stores were pulling the mannequins from the windows they were using them more inside. Those mannequins, would get tripped over or were sometimes hard to see. The company started making bases and stands. This grew into a sideline of making display cases and eventually one client asked if they could design and build a store.

Paul said they knew some contractors who were able to help them and another facet of the business was added.

According to Paul, his father was always looking for a new idea. He remembered a trip to Italy when his father saw some fountains and thought that they would be a good display piece. Paul said that John bought about 10 of them in various shapes and sizes.

After sitting for years in the shop, a request came in for fountains; a mold was made from the original and now they are part of the catalogue.

Paul remembered another humorous incident involving the police. The company had a plaster of Paris statue sent over from Italy. When it arrived, because of poor packaging, some of the plaster of Paris had crumbled leaving a fine white powder at the Logan Airport freight terminal.

The police tracked the package to the company and arrived to search the place with drug-sniffing dogs.

As Pat remembers the years of business he said "It has been hard work, but it has been very rewarding.

A trip through the Woburn plant, which has gone through two enlargements is very interesting as you see many life-like mannequins, displays of Santa Claus and religious symbols, and animals of all kinds.

The products are seen on television shows, and in department stores ranging from a Bradlee's clientele to that of Nieman Marcus'.

However, don't be two surprised as you walk through the front door and see a lady sitting crossed legged on a desk. It's only a mannequin.

Roving

another person's behavior affect him or her, and who is obsessed with controlling that person's behavior.' Well, now I recognize that was what was happening to me. I am obsessed with Pauline, and I have been attempting to cure her problem by controlling her life. The thing is, I have absolutely no power over her, and it is impossible to control anybody's life. If Pauline is going to drink to excess, use drugs, and have promiscuous affairs, then she's going to do it, and no amount of worrying on my part will prevent it."

David pointed out that, through detachment, he has learned to cope with his obsession with Pauline. "I have not detached from her life," he said, "just my obsessive worrying about her life."

He also recognizes another important fact, he told us: he has lost respect for and trust in Pauline. Furthermore, he pointed out, he may even have lost his love for and commitment to her.

"According to another book I've read, a book entitled 'A guide for the Family of the Alcoholic,' this is common," David said. "I'd like to quote something from the book." He opened the book to a page which he had dog-eared, and read aloud: "Love cannot exist without the dimension of justice. Love must also have compassion which means to bear with or to suffer with a person. Compassion does not mean to suffer because of the injustice of a person. Yet injustice is often suffered repeatedly by families of alcoholics."

David further noted that, even though this "injustice" is common, it makes it no less painful. "The book adds, 'Betrayal can be overwhelming when someone we love does things that deeply hurt us. Perhaps the most painful loss many codependents face is the loss of our dreams, the hopeful and sometimes idealistic expectations for the future that most people have. This loss can be the most difficult to accept.'"

David remarked that the loss of his dream to help Pauline overcome her addiction, and then to marry her and settle down is now just a faded memory.

"I must quote one more passage from this book," he said. "It truly sums up what I, and many others, are feeling at this point. 'The dreams were there. Many of us held on for so long, clutching those dreams through one loss and disappointment after another. We flew in the face of reality, shaking these dreams at the truth, refusing to believe or accept anything less. But one day the truth caught up to us and refused to be put off any longer. This wasn't what we wanted, planned on, asked for, or hoped for. It never would be. The dream was dead, and it would never breathe again.'"

"I realize now just how much pain there is at the prospect of losing my love for Pauline or losing the dreams we once had," David went on. "This book goes on to say, 'There's nothing we can say to make that less painful or to lessen our grief. It hurts deeply to have our dreams destroyed by alcoholism or any other problem. The disease is deadly, it kills everything in sight, including our noblest dreams.' This is so true, to bring it out, to face it, to learn to cope with it. This is the only way I'll be able to go on living. A well-known expert in the field of co-dependency counselling once said, 'Chemical dependency destroys slowly, but thoroughly.' She was so, so right."

One of the most difficult tasks confronting David is the issue of forgiveness. "I am finding it hard to forgive Pauline," he said. "I guess it's because she and I have never really resolved our past. I've always had a beginning and an end to my past relationships. This is the first time ever that I don't feel that there is an end to my relationship. In Melody Beattie's book, she reminds people like me that forgiving someone does not mean we have to let that person keep hurting us. That has been my biggest problem: I keep forgiving Pauline each time she hurts me, yet I continue to allow the cycle to go on uninterrupted. Melody Beattie, in her book, tells us that it is important to step back, so that the addicted person can't keep stomping on our toes. That's what detachment is all about, and that is exactly what I am trying to do now."

According to Ms. Beattie, "It is not God's will that we stay miserable and stay in miserable relationships."

"That's exactly what I've been doing," David said. "Through Al-Anon, I've learned that I don't have to stay in this relationship, if it is causing me so much pain and misery. I am free to take care of myself. That's in Melody Beattie's book, too. She says that we may want and need love, but we don't need destructive love. My love for Pauline has been a destructive love. Her love for me has been a destructive love. In 'Co-dependent No More,' I learned that it is important for me to find a balance between letting go of my expectations and remembering that I am a valuable person who deserves to lead a decent life."

The best advice Melody Beattie gives in her book is this: If the relationship is dead, bury it. Well, I may not be at the point where I've thrown the last shovel of dirt on the grave yet, but I've certainly come to the conclusion that it is time for me to think about my life, where I'm going. It's time for me to, as Melody Beattie says in her book, grow forward.

In response to increased patient volume, Winchester Hospital now staffs an additional board certified emergency physician during the Emergency Department's busiest hours, 12 to 6 p.m.

According to Jon Jenkins, M.D., Chairman of the Department of Emergency Medicine at Winchester Hospital, the additional support of a second physician will significantly decrease patient's waiting time. "While the first physician is attending to acutely ill patients, the second physician can be treating more routine complaints," he said. "In this way, patient's with less severe illnesses and injuries can be treated quickly."

"We will continue to practice triage, so that acute care patients are treated immediately. However, the support of an additional physician assures that other patients will be treated faster and more efficiently."

Basketball "Magicians" to perform in North Reading

rans going out to N.R.H.S. Levy Gym on Thursday, March 21, at 7:30 p.m. to watch the Magicians perform will be able to watch history being made and records being broken when they watch the Dr. of Basketball, Marques Haynes, in action with the Magicians.

The Dr. of Basketball is now in his 46th season as a touring professional and has toured throughout 103 different countries exhibiting his unique skills as a basketball magician. He has set and broken every record imaginable while displaying his feats on the hardwood. Each game played, point scored, minutes played, rebound, assist, etc., goes into the record books as his own records being broken.

As player-coach of the Magicians, an ensemble of competitive athletic performers, Haynes is currently fulfilling another phase in his life long dream to spread happiness throughout the world by means of entertaining basketball. Past incarnations, though, have proven just as rewarding.

The Magicians exhibition is being sponsored by the North Reading baseball team. Tickets are on sale at Bucko's and the Hornets Nest. Advance sale $4.

Maple sugaring season in Massachusetts

In Massachusetts, as the days begin to warm but the nights still freeze, sap begins to flow in sugar maple trees, signalling the return of a favorite early Spring tradition, maple sugaring. Farmers take to the woods with buckets, tubing and drills to gather sap from the maple trees, marking the first harvest of the new year. Massachusetts sugarhouses are ready for visitors to come and share in the fun as they "boil 'til it's done."

Sugaring has a language of its own. Tapping is the first step when holes are drilled about three inches deep into the trunk of the maple tree. Spouts are inserted in the holes through which the sap can drip. Buckets are hung to catch the sap and then the sap is gathered and moved from the woods to the sugarhouse where it is boiled into syrup. The gathering and boiling lasts four to six weeks, until the nights no longer freeze. Then budding occurs, signalling the end of the season.

Sugaring has been a Massachusetts tradition since before the Pilgrims landed on Plymouth Rock. The settlers learned sugaring from the Indians, who collected sap in hollowed-out logs and steamed away the water by dropping in hot stones. Today, both old-fashioned and more modern methods of sugaring are observed at one hundred maple farms around the Bay State.

The majority of sugarhouses are located in the hill towns of the central and western part of the state. The Spirit of Massachusetts welcomes newcomers as they travel along quiet backroads dotted with cozy B&B's, antique shops, and weather-beaten sugarhouses.

Visitors can stop by, watch how the sap is boiled into maple syrup, take a tour through the sugarbush and take home fresh maple syrup, candy or cream. Sugar on snow is a special treat at many houses.

Old Sturbridge Village (508-347-3362) in central Massachusetts offers maple sugaring 1830's style. Holes are bored into the trees with an auger, and spiles cut from sumac bushes are inserted. The troughs for catching the sap have been hollowed out of pine or poplar logs and are distributed beneath the spiles. Costumed interpreters collect the sap once a day in wooden buckets and transport it to the sugar camp. The sap is boiled in an iron kettle over an open fire until it thickens into syrup or maple molasses. Then it is taken off the fire and converted into sugar by pouring it into a cone-shaped mold and allowing it to cool. Sugar was the traditional end-product until after the Civil War, when syrup became more common.

Sugaring-off activities are not limited to the Massachusetts countryside. The Blue Hills Interpretive Center (617-333-0690) in Milton, just outside of Boston, offers weekend programs including pancake breakfasts, maple sugaring demonstrations, slide shows and maple sweets. The center is just one of several Massachusetts Audubon Sanctuaries to offer such activities. For more information call (617) 259-9500.

The Massachusetts Maple Producers Association offers a free directory listing one hundred sugarhouses. From late February through early April, the Maple Phone, (413)

628-3912, gives callers a report on the boiling season, updated daily. To receive a maple producers directory, write: Massachusetts Maple Producers Association, P.O. Box 377, Ashfield 01330. As local conditions can account for one sugarhouse boiling when another is not, visitors should always call the house of their choice beforehand.

Woodchips

ANTHONY MANCONI

Mr. John "Jack" Barton, from the Maritime Provinces, was a Shipfitter Supervisor in the Boston Naval Shipyard. Because ship-building and ship repairing is hazardous and dangerous work, standup safety meetings were required. All supervisors would have their crews assemble every Monday morning on whatever ships they were on and deliver a talk on safety. I would make sure I knew what ship Jack Barton would be on and be there to hear his message. Many times I'd have to walk in the driving rain to the last pier in the Navy Yard but I'd be there. I just had to hear this dynamic person's presentation of the safety talk of the week. Jack would invariably end his talk then ask a question to a member of his crew.

One Monday morning he pointed at me and said, "Chipper, you're not a member of my crew. You've been at these meetings for over a year. Please tell me and my men, what is your purpose in life?" "Mr. Barton," I said, "Your safety talks show preparation, humor and love and concern for your fellow men. I'm here to learn and absorb as much of your teaching as possible, in short, my purpose in life is to be like you!" Folks, I perhaps will never be the eloquent speaker that he was, but I hope Woodchips conveys in writing the same message Mr. Jack Barton had for his crew and for me every Monday morning.

When my friend Jimmy Corbett joined the Navy he was sent to The Great Lakes Training Base for training. One day Jimmy and a group of men were ordered to jump from a platform 15 feet high into a pool of water. Everybody jumped but Jimmy. An officer said, "Sailor, what would you do if you were on a sinking ship and you were this high up from the water?" Jimmy saluted then replied, "Sir, I'd wait until the ship sunk ten more feet!"

I remember when an officer asked Mike Finnegan on his first day on the U.S. Matagora, "Young man, what's Port?" Mike snapped to attention then said, "I think it's a Red Wine sir!"

Personality Winners: Melissa E. Martin, Maxwell M. Taylor, Aileen M. Walsh, John "Ed" Fogelberg, Marge Fusco, Andrea Carroll and Leland Preble, all of Burlington; Susan F. Applin, Darnell R. "Attention all cars Police Van carrying four prisoners collided with a cement truck. Be on the lookout for four hardened criminals!" A woman was walking her dog in Reading. I asked her, "Ma'am, is that dog a pedigree?" I read your column Chips, and I'll tell you this, if this dog could talk it wouldn't speak to you!" A cook had to be taken away from an area restaurant. The poor chap had gone "stir-crazy." Folks, have you ever seen a "horse fly" or a "kitchen sink?"

The three rings of marriage are the engagement ring, the wedding ring and the suffering. Many women don't worry about marriage for money. They console themselves that they can repent in Mink. There are two times when men don't know a thing about women -- before they're married and after they're married. I remember when I asked Kathy's father for her hand in marriage. He looked at me, smiled and said, "Woodchipper, you'll have to take more than her hand - you'll have to take all 200 pounds of her. But, wait a minute, before I give my consent I'd like to know 'can you support a family?'" "I sure can," I replied. "Good, besides Kathy there are five more of us!"

When retired barber Jo Leardo goes to Florida on vacation they refer to him as "Joe, the Yankee Clipper." Chubby McDermott, Eddie Bell and George Hallett were in the centerfold of the "Hobo News." Michael Quaganti and his lovely wife Florence are in Las Vegas on vacation. He called me and told me that at one of the dice tables he threw the dice and one fell out of his sleeve. The croupier was real cool about it and showed no emotion as he picked up the three dice, kept one of them and handed Mike two, saying, "Shoot sir, your point is fourteen!"

Many people have asked me why I spend so much time writing Woodchips. So I tell the, quoting Emily Dickinson, "If I can stop one heart from breaking, I shall not live in vain. If I can ease one life the aching or cool one pain or help one fainting robin into his nest again, I shall not live in vain." So, I say, "If I can help one person smile again, I do not write in vain."

I will never be able to repay the debt of gratitude that I have for Jerome and Lee Kaestner's generosity. They are the owners of Unigraphics in Saugus. They interrupted a very busy schedule (because of my short notice) to print over 3,000 copies of my Mother's Day poem free. I want all my readers to know that this compassionate, humanitarian couple will help me share that poem with many of you. May God Bless them.

Visitors to Yosemite National Park are admonished to take nothing but pictures and leave nothing but footprints. Dennis Tully sings this tune, "Since I've lost my glasses, I wonder who's kissing her now." Joe Ravidia is a Latin School graduate. He sings this tune, "Latin is a dead language, as dead as it can be. It killed the ancient Romans and now it's killing me!"

Super Star is Emily Frahar.

Somerset Nursing Home's newest guest named Corey

By PHYLLIS NISSEN

For a two-year-old, Corey is extremely even-tempered and uncommonly wise, giving equal time to Uncle Fred, Margaret, Joseph, Katie, Mildred, and the others.

Part husky, part whatever jumped over the fence, and quite full of herself, she laps up the love of the area participants in Reading's Somerset Nursing Home Adult Day Program - and returns that love tenfold.

"Adopted" in November after an intensive four-week search of local pounds, Corey is the first pet at Somerset and a star attraction for adult day folk, permanent residents, and their guests.

"I'd been reading more and more about the benefits of animals to the elderly, how they bring back a lot of warm memories," says

Adult Day Director Thea Gaudette. "Animals are very comforting - they're totally accepting of how you look or don't look. What you say doesn't make any difference to them."

"They're the one thing in your life that's always warm and friendly and totally accepting."

"When we would talk about animals here, there would be some really wonderful, warm reminiscing. People would talk about dogs or cats or horses or things they really had a very strong connection with in their past."

After trying unsuccessfully to bring in local veterinarians and others as guest speakers for pet therapy sessions and seeing the disappointment at no-shows, Gaudette took "the next logical step," making the rounds of area dog pounds, looking for an animal who would fit in, be calm, kind and accepting, treat everybody like someone special.

Not too young, not too hyper, mellow and good-mannered, Corey had the makings of an excellent program dog. "She didn't react to stimuli or being pushed around or poked - a dog coming into the program must be able to tolerate pokes and steps-on and occasionally, a wheelchair over the tail, which fortunately hasn't happened yet but is always a possibility," says Gaudette.

Size was another of Gaudette's major considerations: the dog had to be large enough so the vision-impaired could see her underfoot and the sedentary easily reach her sitting down, without having to bend over.

Corey looked to be the perfect addition to the Somerset program in spite of her background - Corey was an abused dog. "She was pretty sad-looking," says Gaudette. "She had no name. Somewhere along the line we know she'd been abused because she did tend to cower very badly, wouldn't eat unless she was coaxed, seemed terribly afraid to go to food, just made everybody feel really badly."

Now, however, Corey has blossomed, making the rounds of nursing home residents who call her, enjoying her daily dog biscuit from one of the staff, and her morning visits with the lady who comes in to pat her for 20 minutes before breakfast and before the adult day program opens.

Corey stories abound, testifying to the values of pet therapy. About 75 to 80 percent of Somerset's adult day participants are in various stages of Alzheimer's disease or related dementias. Corey reaches those who no longer reach out.

One wheelchair participant who doesn't interact much with other people has taken to snapping his fingers to attract Corey's attention. One lady will sit for hours with Corey warming her feet. They pat the dog, talk to her constantly, with no worry about finding exactly the right words.

Corey is the first one they look for each morning. "They're very proud of her," says Gaudette. "When someone comes in and makes a fuss over her, everyone beams."

There is no dog budget at Somerset. Corey's presence there is possible only because of cooperation from staff and administration. Gaudette has absorbed all the costs of having Corey in the program, from the $25 adoption fee to the four baths Corey took upon leaving the pound, visits to the veterinarian, and room and board.

"The difficult part of having a pet in a program is that someone needs to be fully responsible for it, so I take her home with me every night and weekend," says Gaudette. "During meal service, the dog has to be put in a separate room, and someone has to take responsibility for walking her."

"In good weather, I take a participant with me or a group of them around the building for exercise."

There will be a special matinee performance at 2 p.m. on Sunday, March 24.

Founding Farms: Five Massachusetts Family Farms, 1638 - Present includes fifty black and white photographs by Northampton photographer Stan Sherer.

Presented through these lyrical images are the histories of these five farms which are the oldest in the Commonwealth. In fact, each farm has remained in the family of its founder for more than 200 years. The exhibit will remain on view through July 7.

The exhibit was produced by University of Massachusetts at Amherst and supported by grants from its Public Service Endowment. For more information call the Museum at (617) 861-1559.

JULIE HARRIS IN "LUCIFER'S CHILD"

Produced by Ronald S. Lee, the director is Tony Abatemarco. The Boston engagement is prior to Broadway.

Ms. Harris and Mr. Luce had a highly successful run on Broadway and later for an extended tour with another of his one-woman plays, "The Belle of Amherst," with Ms. Harris winning her fifth Tony Award for her portrayal of Emily Dickinson. Mr. Luce has based "Lucifer's Child" on the autobiographical writings of Isak Dinesen, the pen name of Baroness Karen Blixen of "Out of Africa" fame.

Ms. Harris, among the few major stars still willing to commit to long tours, enjoyed great success last season with the highly acclaimed tour of "Driving Miss Daisy" - which was presented at the Colonial Theatre and returned by popular demand, for a second engagement!

For other information, call or write Colonial Theatre, 106 Boylston St., Boston 02116, telephone (617) 426-9366.
